THE MESSAGE IS CLEAR

Unfortunately, the wild Cumberland River has become a carrier of some of the waste that has been carelessly disposed of by Kentuckians who live upstream from Cumberland Falls.

As our population increases, so does improper dumping of garbage. During floods or periods of high water, some of this garbage finds its way into the river. This can occur several times a month.

The natural currents and eddies formed around the boulders below the falls act as traps for numerous plastic containers, driftwood and other debris that are washed over the falls. As the river level goes down, an unsightly social message is left for all to see.

The message is clear--our water must be protected from the improper disposal of waste. The Kentucky State Park System makes every effort to preserve the beauty of Cumberland Falls. You can help us by encouraging people to dispose of their waste properly. In the meantime, be assured our crews will be cleaning the falls area until the rains come again.

CUMBERLAND FALLS MOONBOW

The Moonbow that appears here is the only one in the Western Hemisphere. It may be observed under a full moon and a clear sky. An arch of white light is usually produced at base of Falls and continues downstream. Generations of people have visited here to see this natural phenomenon.
